Hsinking, Manchoukuo capital, nsidered forceful means against viets, anxiety felt for missing anchoukuoan steamer unreport- since Wednesday's border clash tween Soviet gunboats and panese land forces.

Moscow—Soviet Russia awaited tion by Japan on proposal for mplete demilitarization of dis- ted Amur islands, agreeing to ithdraw Soviet troops if Japan alled her forces; Russia re- erted claims to the islands; lusion of tense situation ap- eared up to far eastern com- anders of armed forces; Russia illing to fix boundary line after panese "withdraw".

Anxiety for Steamer

Tokyo, July 2 (AP).—Official pan charged a new invasion of anchoukuoan territory by Rus- an planes and gunboats today, sisted it had no "armed forces" disputed Amur river islands d put the question of future cuation of Japanese troops in the order trouble area up to "the preme army command."

Anxiety mounted for a missing anchoukuoan steamer in the anger zone.

Army officials said "the ques- on of evacuation of the islands raised by the Soviet govern- ent does not exist"—that only peaceful fishermen, lighthouse d beaconkeepers now occupy" e disputed sandpits, which the panese say belong to Man- houkuo.

Simultaneously, the dispatches dated, five Soviet gunboats moved to Manchoukuoan waters near e scene of a dramatic clash be- ween Soviet vessels and Japanese rces on Wednesday.

Anxiety was expressed for the fety of the Manchoukuoan eamer Hsingkai, which sailed om Hulin on the Ussuri river ward the Amur on the day of e clash between Soviet gunboats nd Japanese - Manchoukuoan rces. The vessel arrived at the nction of the two rivers that evening but had not since been eported.

Solution in East

Moscow, July 2 (AP).—Solution f the dangerous Russo-Japanese risis growing out of the battle f the Amur river Wednesday was onsidered largely in the hands f military commanders in the ar East today.

Usually competent Moscow ob- ervers declared the immediate uestion was whether the Jap- nese army in Manchoukuo would espond to a Soviet proposal for multaneous demilitarization of he danger zone on the north- astern border of Manchoukuo nd Siberia.

The Soviet government an- ounced early today it would ithdraw its armed forces from e area, already scene of a bloody lash, if Japan would follow uit.

The Russian announcement ame in a foreign office communi- ue insisted, however, that apan and Manchoukuo recognize hat the Soviet has a claim to the isputed islands. Japan has de- lared the islands belong to her ally, Manchoukuo, and has re- used to concede the "invading" ussian force has any legal stand- ng.

Foreign observers considered hat the Soviet foreign office was eginning for time and in some uarters the belief was advanced hat even should Japan force the issue and military action occur, he Soviet would capitulate to void trouble localized.

Germany and Italy Reject Patrol Plan

Two Fascist Nations Suggest Belligerent Rights Be Accorded Both Spanish Government and Insurgent General Franco

London, July 2 (AP).—Germany and Italy today formally rejected an Anglo-French proposal for taking over the entire international non-intervention patrol of Spain's coasts and offered counter-proposals.

The two nations, which have recalled warships from the Spanish patrol, proposed that belligerent rights be accorded both the Spanish government and the regime of Insurgent General Francisco Franco.

Both Germany and Italy stated they were "resolved to maintain the principle of non-intervention."

The German-Italian counter-proposals said:

"The two governments are conscious of the real difficulties of the situation and think that all the more their duty to all is to seek new ways and methods to make non-intervention as effective as possible."

The two powers then proposed that "all interested powers agree to grant to the two parties in Spain belligerent rights."

A number of arguments were presented in behalf of the suggestion.

Germany and Italy declared that "the patrol system by four powers has utterly failed" and that the two combatants in Spain, with their own ships and acting with belligerent rights, could establish "an effective form of patrol."

They pointed out that by receiving a status under international rules of war, the warring sides would "assume towards neutral states full responsibility for the conduct of warfare in the air, on land and on the sea."

In the face of non-agreement for the time being on the Italo-German counter-proposals, France and Britain were reported to have formulated a firm stand that might lead even to abandonment of the whole scheme for isolating Spain from men and arms.

The non-intervention subcommittee which heard the Italo-German stand today adjourned to await a late afternoon meeting.

3 Pastors, Church Lawyer Go on Trial in Nazi Court

Berlin, July 2 (AP)—Three Protestant confessional pastors and a church lawyer went on secret trial today in Moabit Court, charged with inciting defiance of government decrees.

The Rev. Gerhard Jacobi, pastor of the Kaiser Wilhelm Memorial Church in Berlin, and his three co-defendants were accused specifically of publicly reading the names of persons who had left the church.

The prosecutor, however, demanded acquittal for the Rev. Mr. Jacobi and the Rev. Mr. Niesel. He asked imprisonment for one month for the Rev. Mr. von Arnim-Luetzlow and two months for the church attorney, a lawyer named Ehlers.

The charge was similar to that which yesterday caused the imprisonment of the Rev. Martin Niemoeller, most outspoken of the Protestant antagonists of Nazi church policy.

There were reports that police suspected Niemoeller of arranging a meeting at which it had been decided to continue such public readings next Sunday.

The official German News Agency declared Niemoeller "for a long time" had "carried on agitation in church services and lectures and slandered leading personalities of the state and the (Nazi) party in order to disquiet the population. His utterances were a steady topic in the foreign anti-German press."

Niemoeller had ridiculed the Nazi church policy repeatedly from the pulpit. In recent sermons he derided attempts to substitute for Christian repentance a "heroic" attitude toward life "as though there were only one possible attitude for German to assume today, namely that of Prometheus or Lucifer—the pose of a defiant Titan."

When Niemoeller would be tried was not announced.

Still another government move to stamp out church opposition was seen in the announcement through the Official News Agency that Catholic priests and Protestant pastors may lecture in public schools of the state of Wurtemberg only if they swear allegiance to Chancellor Hitler.

Orders Steel Census.

Berlin, July 2 (AP)—Col. Gen. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, director of Germany's economic self-sufficiency plan, today ordered a census of the country's steel and iron reserves. The decree called for registration before July 15 of any supplies of these metals of 10 tons or more.

Budge Wins England's Title from Von Cramm At Wimbledon in 3 Sets

Wimbledon, Eng., July 2 (AP).—Don Budge, lanky red-head from Oakland, Calif., today won the all-England singles tennis championship, blasting Germany's Baron Gottfried von Cramm off the courts in straight sets, 6-3, 6-4, 6-2.

The American Davis Cup star's decisive triumph climaxed a brilliant performance by Budge throughout the famed Wimbledon tournament. En route to the title relinquished by Fred Perry, now a professional, Budge dropped only one set and that to his Davis Cup team-mate, Frankie Parker of Milwaukee.

For von Cramm it was his second successive trouncing in Wimbledon's final. He lost to Perry last year, 6-1, 6-1, 6-0.

President Has Day Without Callers at Hyde Park Home

Hyde Park, N. Y., July 2 (AP).—President Roosevelt, who felicitated Canada last night on the Confederation's seventieth birthday, faced today one of those rare occasions in the life of a president—a day with not a single caller on his engagement calendar.

As members of the family who came east for the Roosevelt-du Pont wedding began to scatter, he planned to stay close to his mother's Dutchess county estate except for a possible motor ride around the countryside.

Mr. and Mrs. John Boettiger, son-in-law and daughter, left early to catch a plane for Seattle.

The president capped the first of five days he intends to spend here with a radio address last night congratulating Canada on the 70th anniversary of her confederation.

"Ours is an enviable record of friendship and amity," he said in exchanging greetings with Lord Tweedsmuir, Canada's Governor General, "as witness an unfortified boundary of more than 5,000 miles as the outward and visible

Quartet of Jewel Thieves Invades Chic Beekman Place; $100,000 Jewel Haul

New York, July 2 (AP).—A quartet of jewel thieves invaded fashionable Beekman Place early today and at gunpoint stripped a society matron of jewelry valued at $100,000.

The robbery occurred only a few doors from the apartment house where Mrs. Nancy Evans Titterton, victim of last year's sensational bath tub murder, was strangled.

Mrs. Josephine Ogden Forrestal, socially prominent victim of Manhattan's latest jewel robbery, told police the bandits took two platinum bracelets set with diamonds, and two platinum rings.

They did not take anything from her escort, Richard B. W. Hall, a broker, overlooking $700 he had in his pocket.

As Mrs. Forrestal and Hall arrived at the entrance of her apartment in Hall's chauffeured limousine, the bandit car drove up, they related, before Frederick Tucker, the chauffeur, could open the car door for Mrs. Forrestal, one of the robbers stuck a gun against his side saying:

"What's your hurry, buddy?"

Another bandit climbed into the car and pulled the bracelets from Mrs. Forrestal's arms and the rings from her fingers. The other two robbers stood on the opposite side of the car.

The robbery lasted only a few seconds.

One of the men put his hand into Hall's right trouser pocket, but found nothing. He did not take time to search another pocket where Hall had a large roll of bills.

At that point, two men in another car drove up and muttered to one of the robbers:

"Hurry up, Joe."

The bandits then fled in their car, later found abandoned nearby, a fender dented.

Plans Are Complete to Welcome Roosevelt at Plattekill Church Fair

President of United States Will Speak from Car at 4 o'clock for About 20 Minutes to Fair Goers.

OTHER SPEAKERS

Ministers from Kingston and Nearby Will Have Parts in Annual Event.

President Franklin D. Roosevelt will speak at the annual church fair held at the Plattekill Reformed Church at Mt. Marion on Monday, July 5.

In a letter of acceptance, written by Mr. Roosevelt's secretary and received Tuesday by the committee in charge of the fair, it was stated "the President plans to arrive by automobile about 4 o'clock, and will speak from his car for about 20 minutes." He will drive to Mt. Marion from his home at Hyde Park, and will be accompanied by his secretary and the secret service men detailed to guard him on all occasions.

Other speakers on the program will include the Rev. Arthur E. Oudemool of Kingston, the Rev. Edward Ton of Castleton, the Rev. Harvey Hoffman of Schuylerville, the Rev. Mr. Potter, D. D., of Schenectady, all former pastors of the Plattekill Church. Van Dyck See, a son of a former pastor, also will be on the program.

Music for the affair will be furnished by a 25-piece band from the Williams Band Camp at Pine Grove, and Miss Cecile Jacobson of New York city, who is connected with the band camp and has been the leading soloist in the operas given at the camp each summer, will render several vocal solos.

A feature of the amusements offered at the fair will be a merry-go-round manufactured by an artist of Woodstock, Tomas Penning, from rough logs.

The usual fancy booths and refreshment stands that grace the fairs of the country churches will be in evidence as the Mt. Marion folks celebrate the annual church occasion.

Preparations are being made to handle the large crowds of people who are expected to attend the fair, coming from miles around to hear the President of the United States address the assemblage.

Just what the subject of President Roosevelt's discourse will be is not known as the letter from his secretary made no mention of the chief executive's theme, but stated that Mr. Roosevelt would talk from his car, and "would a 20 minute speech be satisfactory?"

SAYS U. S. IS "GERMANY" OF AMERICAN CONTINENT

Warsaw, Poland, July 2 (AP)—Alexandro Carrillo, Mexican delegate to the International Federation of Trade Union's Congress, charged today that the United States for 25 years has "supported internal turmoil in Mexico to further its own selfish and imperialistic aims."

"The United States are the Germany of the American continent," he said.

Carrillo's attack came after the executive committee had adopted a resolution expressing solidarity with "Democratic Spain" and urging all members of the League of Nations to take immediate action in order to save world peace.

Suppressed Photos Reveal Chicago Police "Brutality"

Senator Thomas Says Strikers Gave No Provocation for Battle in Which 10 Died, 40 Were Injured.

BAYONETS BRISTLE

More Steel Mills Open Under Bayonet Protection at Massillon, Ohio—More Pickets.

Washington, July 2 (AP)—Senate investigators produced from a battered tin canister today a suppressed newsreel version of Chicago's Memorial Day battle between steel strike pickets and police.

Showing of the film, which Paramount Pictures had withheld from theatres for fear of causing disorders, followed testimony of policemen and union sympathizers regarding violence near a Republic Steel plant.

Ten persons died and 40 suffered injuries in the clash.

Senator Thomas (D-Utah), who viewed the film at a secret committee showing, said it indicated extreme brutality by police "without the slightest provocation from the strikers."

A make-shift screen was spread against the marble walls of the Senate caucus chamber for the first showing of motion picture evidence in the history of congressional inquiries.

Chairman La Follette (Prog-Wis) said Chicago police officials who steadfastly have maintained the shooting was justified would be invited to comment on the film's disclosures.

Police Account at Variance

The police account of the battle was at variance with testimony yesterday by Ralph Beck, reporter for the Chicago Daily News, who insisted the strikers were trying to establish peaceful picketing, not to storm the Republic plant.

Beck testified the officers were armed with hatchet-handles from the steel mill, and that they had taken their meals in the plant cafeteria for eight or ten days before the encounter. Police had denied both those statements.

While several patrolmen had described the demonstrators as "wild men," Beck said they looked "like a crowd of picnickers." He disputed the contention of Captain Thomas Kilroy that they threatened or insulted the police.

Riffe's Story.

John Riffe, strike leader, told Senate investigators today Memorial Day marchers who clashed with police in front of the Republic Steel plant at South Chicago did not intend to enter the plant when they staged their demonstration.

Riffe testified before the Senate civil liberties committee that the marchers "didn't have any idea of coming into the gate; it never was discussed."

He said that at the meeting preceding the march, the strikers and other union members had declined to establish a picket line "in front of the plant" where, he said, police had previously restricted picketing.

"If the gate were left unguarded," he declared, "I'm sure not a man would have walked through it."

Bayonet Protection

(By The Associated Press)

Massillon, O., July 2—Under bayonet protection, more strike-locked steel mills opened here today while rival camps of Youngstown Sheet & Tube employes were stirred by reports of new plans to reopen plants at Indiana Harbor, Ind.

Del Ellinwood, secretary of the Association of Steel Employes, an independent union opposed to the C I O strike, said he expected "some definite word about reopening" the Indiana Harbor Mills within a few hours.

C. I. O. strike leaders immediately sent out a general call for pickets to resist the move. Spotters were stationed along the Lake Michigan shore to "spread the alarm" at the first indication of non-strikers moving back into the mills.

The Indiana Harbor plant normally employs about 7,000 men.

Defies Picket Siege

Massillon, O., July 2 (AP)—Republic Steel Corp. defied a CIO picket siege and reopened another strike-locked plant today. There was no violence.

Gates of the concern's central steel division swung open, under protection of steel-helmeted national guard men, for the first time since the strike started May 27.

Non-strikers, in about 115 automobiles, quietly drove inside. About 300 pickets booed and jeered but were kept away from the plant by the troops.

The reopening left Cleveland the only city where Republic's sprawling mills are completely closed. Reopening of the four Cleveland units is expected next week.

Only a few hours before the concern's newest "back-to-work"

Only 3 Grades of Milk May Be Sold Legally in City

Albany, July 1 (AP)—The State Department of Health banned today the sale of Grade A and Grade B raw milk in cities and villages having populations between 10,000 and 15,000.

Similar restrictions were established several years ago for cities of over 15,000 population.

W. D. Tiedeman, chairman of the bureau of milk sanitation, said the ban, effective immediately, was pronounced under a provision of the state sanitation code. It is designed, he explained, to reduce the number of disease outbreaks, particularly of scarlet fever, caused by consumption of raw milk.

Since 1917, he said 124 outbreaks of disease, with approximately 10 cases each, have been traced to that source.

"Dealers in all of the communities affected by the ban," Tiedeman said, "have been notified either to pasteurize their products or sell the higher grades of milk—certified or special Grade A.

Under the provisions of Kingston's milk code only three grades of milk can be legally sold in the city, certified and Grades A and B pasteurized. The only raw milk sold in the city is certified milk.

The only exception to the city's milk code provisions is the selling of raw milk by those who own a cow and sell the surplus milk to the neighbors who call for it with their own containers.

Clipper Ships Have Part In Atlantic Air Route

Earhart-Noonan Blaze New Path on Howland Flight

San Francisco, July 2 (AP)—Amelia Earhart blazed a new air trail over the South Pacific today in a hazardous 2,570 mile flight from Lae, New Guinea, to tiny Howland Island.

She started at 10 a. m. today, Lae time, (4 p. m., yesterday Pacific Standard Time) and was expected to complete it in about 18 or 20 hours.

The first radio message received early today by Coast Guard headquarters here, where George Putnam is listening in on his wife's flight, was undecipherable. Putnam said he "assumed" the flight was proceeding normally.

It is the longest and most perilous flight ever undertaken by America's leading feminine aviator.

To aid her the United States Navy stationed the ocean going tug Ontario midway along her route and the Coast Guard sent the cutter Itasca to Howland Island.

Flying across the equator and the international dateline, Miss Earhart was scheduled to arrive in Howland, technically, a few hours before she took off from Lae. While it was 10 a. m. Friday in Lae when the flight started, it was only 12:30 p. m. Thursday in Howland. A 20 hour flight would bring her into Howland at 8:30 a. m. Friday.

Two more long over-water hops lay ahead of Miss Earhart before the end of her globe-girdling itinerary in Oakland, Calif. From Howland she planned to fly 1,532 miles to Honolulu where she would again be back on established air routes for the remaining 2,410 miles to California.

10 Persons Killed

London, July 2 (AP)—Ten persons, including four officials, were believed to have been killed in an explosion and fire today in the Brymbo coal mine at Chesterton, Stoke-on-Kent.

New York, July 2 (AP)—American aviation's commercial conquest of the world neared its completion today as Pan American Airways prepared a flying boat for an "experimental" schedule flight to London in a final step toward adding a transatlantic passenger service to its service across the Pacific and around South America.

The flight will start tomorrow morning from Port Washington, Long Island, simultaneously with the beginning of a westward trip from London by a British flying boat of Imperial Airways. Both companies are making the flights to obtain joint data on radio, weather, and navigation conditions.

The American ship will fly 1,072 miles direct to Botwood Harbor, Newfoundland, where the British government has authorized the construction of a $5,500,000 air base. It will remain there over Sunday, then cover 1,995 miles to alight on the River Shannon at Foynes, County Limerick, Irish Free State. There it will lay over at least another day before continuing on the 251 miles to Southampton, the seaplane base for the Port of London.

In command of the Pan-American Clipper, a four engined Sikorsky, is Capt. Harold E. Gray, one of the five trained pilots in the world to hold the rating "master of ocean flying boats." He has flown approximately 750,000 miles in such craft, mainly in Pan American's service across the Pacific, the Caribbean, and in the South Atlantic.

The British boat is H. M. A. Caledonia, commanded by Capt. A. S. Wilcockson, a veteran of the royal air force.

Neither passengers nor mail will be carried by either ship.

Tomorrow's flight will see United States' commercial airliners in operation around approximately 16,000 miles of the earth's 25,000-mile circumference.

Washington, July 2 (AP)—President Roosevelt nominated Wilbur J. Carr, veteran assistant secretary of state, today to be minister to Czechoslovakia.

Court Bill Opponents Plan on Using Robinson Substitute to Block Issue

Washington, July 2 (AP)—Opponents of the Roosevelt Court Bill used the substitute proposed today by Senator Robinson (D-Ark) as an argument for sidetracking the entire issue.

They contended the new measure could be referred to the Judiciary Committee, which studied the original bill but did not investigate alternate proposals.

They expressed confidence that would bury the measure at least for the remainder of this session.

Administration forces foiled this procedure. The test will come next week when Senator Robinson, the Democratic leader, moves that the bill be debated instead of the Roosevelt measure.

Robinson suggested appointment of one justice to the court at the rate of one a year as members over 75 do not retire. Any increase would be temporary, using a return to the present six as the other justices retired or died.

The original Roosevelt bill calls for immediate appointment of a new justice for each incumbent over 70. The court would remain at the increased size.

The Robinson bill also would limit the appointment of additional lower court judges to a maximum of 20, instead of the 50 fixed in the President's bill. Any increases there would be temporary.

A new clause was written into the substitute to expedite Supreme Court trial of lower court decisions involving the constitutionality of acts of Congress.

A recommendation for legislation of this kind was contained in President Roosevelt's court reorganization message to Congress, but it was left out of the bill he submitted.

Administration senators said, and opponents did not deny it, that there were enough votes to pass the compromise if it should come to a vote. The foes expressed determination not to let it reach a vote unless they picked up enough strength to beat it.

1 Killed, 20 Hurt In Fireworks Blast

Nampa, Idaho, July 2 (AP)—Children at play were blamed by officials today as they started an investigation of the fireworks explosion in which three persons were killed and 20 others maimed and injured. It was the nation's first major pre-independence day catastrophe.

Fire Chief L. T. Lessinger said a child touched off a fire-works window display yesterday that turned a crowded combination drug store and beauty parlor into an inferno of darting explosives.

Mrs. T. C. Daniels, 29, her dress a sudden sheet of flame, died in the store.

Three-year-old Katherine Miller and 12-year-old Ardyce Pavek rushed to hospitals with 15 other victims, died within a few hours.

Katherine's mother, Mrs. Ernest Miller, 28, and Mrs. George LeDelle, 38, of nearby Marsing, were horribly burned. Hospital attaches said they had only a "fighting chance" to survive.

Several of the other victims suffered broken arms and legs in addition to powder burns.

Once before, on July 3, 1909, a fireworks explosion and fire swept Nampa. That one destroyed 25 buildings and cost $250,000," said Lessinger. Yesterday's damages were estimated at $25,000.

"Bonds of Friendship"

Washington, July 2 (AP)—Representative Caroline O'Day, of Rye, N. Y., said today she believed ratification by the Senate this week of eight Pan American treaties would "cement the bonds of friendship between the American Republics and have a salutory effect on the European situation." Mrs. O'Day, an active supporter of peace organizations, attended the inter-American conference in Buenos Aires last winter as a delegate of the Peace Mandate Committee.

Timely Talkie at Broadway Theatre

The Broadway Theatre said today: "Seldom does a two-reel motion picture have such timeliness as does 'Servant of the People', which literally stands as a headline subject because of the nationwide, even international, interest in the government's aims to liberalize the Constitution. 'Servant of the People' to all appearances was staged and produced with diligence and patient effort telling in effective dramatic style how the Constitution came into existence, and why, and what its authors meant it to be.

Price Average Falls Back to January Level

New York (AP)—Impelled in part by heavy European speculation, commodity prices surged upward in the first quarter of 1937 and fell back in the second, finishing the half-year at approximately opening levels.

The general situation at the start of the year was one of light consumer inventories, unusually low world supplies and restricted production of many staples, running head on into rising industria, and consumer demand.

Higher quotations stemming from this bullish signal were prodded into runaway advances in several products by Britain's announcement of her rearmament program.

Metals Climb

This attracted speculators, notably in London and especially in metals Coppers soared to 17 cents a pound from the 11⅝ quoted on December 31, 1936. Lead boomed to 7³⁄₄ cents, a 32 per cent jump from the year's opening price tin swept from 51¾ to 57¼ cents a pound.

The Associated Press weighted index of 35 important wholesale commodities climbed from 89.22 per cent of 1926 levels at the first of the year to 98.14 on April 5. This was an advance of 10 per cent and carried the index to the highest point reached since late 1929

The non-ferrous metal group chalked up the widest gain, 35 per cent at the peak. Other industrial staples, with steel scrap and billets setting the pace, pushed 15 per cent ahead.

Increases in agricultural prices during the first three months averaged 10 per cent. Textiles managed by a slim margin to string along with the majority, while food prices declined 8 per cent

Roosevelt Warning Halts Rise

The speculative frenzy spread from metals to many other industrial raw and finished goods as companies and individuals bought heavily against future needs

The climax was reached during the first week of April. President Roosevelt's warnings that metal prices had risen too high were credited as being the straw that broke the back of the speculative camel.

Some time before this point was reached, however, commodity experts saw signs of the impending downturn

Gains Wiped Out

Prices plummeted The Associated Press index tumbled almost steadily during the remaining weeks of the first half of the year

Metals led the decline, the non-ferrous group index dropping 15 per cent Textiles suffered the second widest break. Cotton cloth fell from a top of 8⅛ cents a yard to 6¾ at the end of June Weakness in this staple was credited to a top-heavy inventory position, especially in fine goods lines

Measured by The Associated Press commodity indices, changes in the six-month period found food and textiles down 14 and 11 per cent respectively; metals and livestock 14 per cent higher; industrial staples up 5 per cent, and agricultural up 2 per cent.

Russian Melting Pot Simmers In Shanghai

Scene: Shanghai—Cast: Russian

(By The AP Feature Service)

Shanghai — Twenty thousand Russian refugees who started coming here 15 years ago have carved out a "Little Russia" for themselves in the French quarter of Shanghai. They greatly outnumber the French and as a result Russian shops and restaurants line the streets. Even Chinese stores ignore the French language and put out signs in Russian

Pretty Russian taxi-dancers fill the foreign-patronized cabarets Old holidays are religiously observed and although many of the refugees exist in absolute poverty, Russian Easter and New Year bring an air of excitement and gayety. Worshippers crowd into the two Russian cathedrals, which add a touch of Moscow to Shanghai's skyline

People without a country, the Russians are dependent on the Chinese courts for protection

In the last few years, a straggling number, mostly young people, who have never seen their fatherland, have returned to Russia Some are enthusiastic converts to Stalin's political system; others feel that they would be economically better off in Russia than in Shanghai where so many of their number, in desperation, are willing to work for a small fraction of what other foreigners would demand

If the long-predicted Russo-Japanese war should break out, it is debatable how the refugees would react. Many might side with Russia because they still consider it their country. But the higher class refugees who lost heavily in the revolution might go pro-Japanese

Those elephants eating peanuts there mightn't be over thirty or forty years old for all I know. Or like as not they'd be a hundred years or so.

I'll bet people living to be as old as elephants would know a whole lot! But the next best thing is to learn from the folks that have gone before you—and that's what we've tried to do in our Family—learn from Pa Wilken all he picked up in his 40 odd years of distilling, just as he learned from Grandpa Wilken what he knew about making fine whiskey. And this personal Family's Recipe of ours has got everything all of us learned concerning making whiskey mild and tasty. Yes sir—everything!

BIGGER, BETTER FORESTS

The death of Charles Lathrop Pack of New Jersey has called attention to the immense progress made by American forestry in the last 30 years. In this work Mr. Pack has had a large share. Following up the pioneer labors of Gifford Pinchot and Theodore Roosevelt, who made reforestation an important branch of the federal service, Mr. Pack continued in a private capacity, spending much of his own money and a large part of his time for a quarter of a century. He helped to check the ruthless destruction of American forests, to restore them where it was necessary, and to plant trees where there had been none. It may be no exaggeration to say that billions of trees today owe their existence to his efforts.

Incidentally, as most Americans perhaps do not realize, there has come about a remarkable change in the regional distribution of our forests. While lumbering operations have continued to make vast inroads into the western forests, merely modified a little in late years by less destructive methods, eastern forests have been growing up again.

This comes partly from natural growth, but is largely the result of the new forestation gospel preached by Mr. Pack and his fellow-workers in the East. The effect is so noticeable today in New England, New York and Pennsylvania that it astonishes people from the Middle West, where forests are few and small. Indeed, some observers are saying, a time may come when residents of the western states will travel east to see real forests.

KNOWING EACH OTHER

Employers and employees seldom really know and understand each other. From this lack of understanding, perhaps, come most of our industrial troubles. Here is a bit of sensible comment about the matter from Business Columnist Richard Harding of the Cleveland Plain Dealer, who writes from the midst of the area providing most of the recent strike news.

One of the contributing causes of the unhappy labor situation is the poor news service maintained by most of the big employers. In some notable instances they knew so little of what was going on in the workers' minds that until the strike was actually in effect they refused to believe that it was coming.

He is not suggesting or approving anything like espionage. A proper news service for the employers, he suggests, "would have fitted neatly into what many companies like to speak of as their public relations." It would have included meeting employes in such a way as to afford an exchange of information and ideas.

As things were going, the management knew nothing about the men, and the men knew nothing about the company, except as they might have read, and partly understood, a quarterly financial statement. As a rule, all they got out of such reading was that the company was making a whale of a lot of money, but the men weren't sharing it.

He remarks that a big corporation is really more concerned with what its men think of it and its management than with what the general public thinks. And merely "doing things for the men" doesn't fill the bill. Club houses and athletic fields and so on, under the patronage of the employer, are all right, but not what the men are really interested in. "Uplift programs" are far less effective, in maintaining good relations and promoting confidence, than mutual acquaintance and understanding. These are mostly human values, established and maintained by human contact. The employers must know and like their men, and the men must know and like their employers. And this requires no miracle. Cynics have often been astonished to find how easy it is to like people—almost any class of people—when you really know them.

AMERICAN GUITARS

Guitar manufacturers report an extraordinary demand for their instruments. It is not directly a result of the Spanish war, although the attention centered on that conflict has influenced a number of fads. Dealers say that the use of the guitar on radio programs is chiefly responsible for starting the public interest in this direction now. Guitars range in price from $5 to $400, so that nearly everyone who wants an instrument can find one suited to his purse.

It is rather interesting to find strenuous Americans taking up this romantic instrument of more leisurely peoples. It is sad, however, to consider how many guitars must have been silenced in Spain by the sounds and demands of warfare.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

(Registered in accordance with The Copyright Act)

Body Has a Thermostat

Many homes are now equipped with a thermostat which controls the heat of the furnace. The thermostat is set at about 70 degrees Fahrenheit for the day and 60 to 65 degrees while the family are sleeping. The thermostat does away with the very high temperature and the very low temperature of former years.

As you know, that body of yours is like a furnace or steam boiler which creates or manufactures heat and also gets rid of wastes or ashes perspiration, urine, faeces (wastes from the bowel) and the wastes in the air coming out of the lungs.

Your body also has a thermostat provided by Nature which regulates the amount of heat in the body. The body's thermostat is the skin. If too much heat is being manufactured for the needs of the body, the brain is first notified and the brain then sends word or an impulse to all the blood vessels on the surface of the body which causes them to open up more widely; perspiration—heated water—is poured out and the temperature of the body is thus lowered.

Some months ago I spoke of the research work done by Drs. George Booth and James M. Stang and recorded in the Archives of Internal Medicine. They point out that something has evidently gone wrong or is out of order with the body's thermostat—the skin—in overweight individuals. During the time shortly after meals the skin lets off the body heat.

"Skin temperatures of overweight persons rise less than those of normals during the eating and digesting of food, which means that the sensation of satisfied appetite—the feeling of not wanting any more food — is delayed in the fat man until after he has eaten too much."

Thus Dr. Thomas Cowling in Oral Health tells us that the age old puzzle, "Why does a fat man eat too much?" is now answered. He eats too much because his thermostat—the skin—is out of order and does not warn him when he has had "enough" to eat and so he continues to eat "more" than enough.

The thought then for overweights and for many of us who are not overweight is not to keep eating till we are satisfied but to stop just a little before we reach this point.

FLAME TRAIL

BY MARIE DE NERVAUD

SYNOPSIS: When Kay Crandon's Lazy Nine ranch house and barn burn, Josh Hastings—who wants to buy the ranch and marry Kay—invites her to the Flying Six. She refuses, distrusting him, but young sister Babs and Aunt Kate go. The insurance money has to go to the mortgage, jolting Kay's plan to rebuild. Ted Gaynor, a puncher Kay hired impulsively, stirs the outfit to cut its own lumber and rebuild without pay. She is on her way to buy the only available timberland when Scrap Johnson, a Hastings puncher, lassoes her, leaving her roped on the mesa. Meanwhile Ted gets an option on the land for Kay.

Chapter 15

Rescue With Fury

RESOLVING to get up on the open range, bonds or no bonds, Kay managed to edge painfully up the slope, using her elbows and knees to pull herself along.

The distance, which could have been covered in a few strides on foot, seemed endless when negotiated in this painful fashion. At last she reached the top and sank back, faint with exhaustion.

Opening her eyes, she could see the range stretching out in undulating waves to the horizon on the south and east; while to the north and west the mountains rose to intercept its vast sweep. There was not a sign of life. In a kind of stupor, Kay watched the flickering waves of heat that made the air seem to vibrate against the blue sky.

A merciful oblivion was stealing over her, when suddenly against the sky on the horizon to the south she saw outlined the silhouette of a horseman.

The first sickening dread that it might be Scrap Johnson passed with the realization that he wouldn't be riding so far to the south. Resolving that whoever the rider was, she would rather trust herself to him than to Johnson, Kay took fresh courage.

Strengthened by new hope, she struggled to her knees, gazing intently at the distant apparition. Unless she could stand up, there wasn't a chance that he could see her.

She edged her way over to a smooth boulder and, bracing herself against it, managed to pull herself up on her feet. As she wavered uncertainly on the one foot that was in a position to take a solid stand, her heart gave a great leap and a strangled cry beat against the muffling bandanna.

The horseman had come to a standstill! Speck as he was in the distance, Kay knew he was looking her way.

In an instinctive impulsive effort to jerk up her arms and signal to him, she lost her balance, and slumped to the ground. Straining and panting, she tried again to get up. Her eyes never left the silhouetted figure.

She groaned with desperation as she saw him resume his way. Then her courage forsook her, and she gave in to the rushing blackness that enveloped her.

The Thud Of Hoofbeats

"SLEEPING beauty, eh?"

Kay came to to realize that Scrap Johnson was standing over her. She kept her eyes closed as she summoned all her courage to meet the ordeal ahead. If she kept her wits about her, there might yet be some way out. The man must have some decency she could appeal to! But she mustn't show any fear!

He gave a low whistle. "I'll say you've done some traveling!" he observed. "Kind of hard going, what?"

He stooped down and loosened her gag. "No point in covering up those red lips, any longer," he laughed mockingly as he straightened up again. "Come on, Cutie. I know you're shamming! Open up those brown eyes of yours! I like to see 'em snap!"

Kay opened her eyes and looked straight at him, without moving. All her will power was shining in their hypnotic depths, and, in spite of himself, Scrap Johnson gave an embarrassed laugh, and took a backward step.

"If you'll cut these bonds and ride away from here," Kay's voice was low and intent, as she held him with her gaze, "I'll agree to keep still about what's happened. That's your only chance to stay on this range and live."

For a moment he wavered. Then, with a hoarse laugh, he stooped down beside her, and put his arm around her.

"A bird in the hand's worth two in the bush," he gloated, breathing heavily. His eyes avoided hers and focused on her lips, and Kay felt a sick rush of terror.

In their absorption, neither had heard the thud of distant hoofbeats, but now, at the same moment, they both became aware of them.

Scrap Johnson dropped Kay with an oath, sprang to his feet and seized his gun.

In the same instant, Kay kicked out fiercely against his shins, her bound feet catching him unawares and throwing him off his balance. He crashed to the ground, his gun exploding harmlessly in the air.

Through waves of blackness, Kay heard the pounding of hoofs and Ted Gaynor's voice calling, "Lie still! If you move, you're a goner!"

Galvanized to life again by the miracle of hearing Ted's voice, Kay shrank away from the prone figure at her feet, that suddenly ceased struggling at the deadly threat behind Ted's command. With her heart in her throat, she turned and gazed at the oncoming figure of her rescuer.

Taking in the situation at a glance, Ted pulled his mount to a sliding stop and slipped off. His eyes were fixed on Scrap Johnson, whom he kept covered with the gun Kay had given him.

A foot or two away from Scrap Johnson, his gun lay where it had fallen, just out of reach. Shifting his aim for one fraction of a second, Ted fired, shattering the gun to bits. Then he covered the man on the ground again, before he had a chance to move.

"Get out of his reach, Kay," Ted called, without once taking his eyes off his victim. "I don't aim to have him try to use you as a shield!"

Kay obeyed without a word, dragging herself to one side.

"Now, get up, you!"

It seemed to Kay that she had never heard such controlled fury in any human voice.

After a moment's hesitation, the Flying Six puncher rose to his feet.

"Pitch 'em, and keep 'em there!"

With a snarl, he obeyed. Kay glanced fearfully from one man to the other.

"Turn around!" Ted's voice rang out again. As his prisoner obeyed, he reached with his free hand for the rope on the pommel of his saddle. Stepping swiftly over to Scrap Johnson, he pressed his gun into his back, at the same time putting a loop around his raised hands. Jerking them down, he expertly trussed his arms to his sides, then tripped him and finished the job of hog-tieing him.

'A Second Lesson'

LEAVING him where he had dropped, Ted strode over to Kay and, with quick, clean cuts of his knife, severed the ropes that bound her.

"Are you all right?" His breath came quickly, as he gazed anxiously into Kay's eyes.

She nodded, a tremulous, reassuring smile on her lips. "Yes, thanks to you."

Ted handed her her father's gun. "Take this, and if anything happens to me, you can protect yourself. But nothing will happen." His voice still vibrated with the same deadly fury.

"What are you going to do?" Kay demanded.

"Much as I'd like to, I can't kill this cowardly coyote in cold blood if he hasn't harmed you; and I'm not going to drag him to the sheriff to have this noised about the range. So, I'm going to give him a second lesson he won't forget, and if he ever shows up on the range again, I'll kill him!"

"No—no!" Kay cried in a terror-stricken voice. "Leave him bound and let's go!"

Without appearing to hear her, Ted stepped swiftly away, and called contemptuously to Scrap Johnson. "That's only a slip noose. Get yourself free and come take your lesson."

A look of mingled surprise and elation gleamed in Scrap Johnson's eyes as he strained against the ropes and felt them give. Shaking himself loose, he crouched for a moment, then made a rush for Ted, all the rage of his former defeat in his attack.

It seemed to Kay that it was hours instead of seconds that, heart in her mouth, she watched the struggle. Both men were slight in build, though Scrap Johnson had a decided advantage in weight and general physical fitness.

The indignity that Kay had suffered, however, added an invincible fury to Ted's attack that far outweighed any mere physical advantage.

Sidestepping his opponent's fist-swinging rush, he tore back at him with a blow that sent him staggering backwards. Recovering his balance, Scrap Johnson lowered his head with a roar of rage and butted into Ted's stomach like a battering ram. But Ted countered with a swinging uppercut that found its mark.

Following up his advantage like one possessed, he landed one terrific punch after another, finally forcing his antagonist to his knees. Panting and blinking the sweat out of his eyes, Ted drew back and let the groggy puncher struggle to his feet.

Then Scrap Johnson put all he had left in a wild lunge. Ted saw his opportunity and drove a knockout blow to his chin.

Scrap's head snapped back with a sickening twist. Groaning, he toppled to the ground and lay still.

SHOKAN

Shokan, July 2.—Mrs. D. T. Reardon of Brooklyn is again at her summer home in the village center. Other members of the family here include Christina, Margaret and Thomas Reardon.

James Snead, who was a familiar figure here during waterworks construction years, was numbered among the Kingstonians in town Tuesday. Mr. Snead has sold the James McMillan property at Brodhead to city folk.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Giacone of the north boulevard returned home Wednesday from a motor trip to Saratoga Springs.

Homer Markle, Jr., is engaged in painting the exterior of the Shokan schoolhouse. The color scheme for the school building again is golden brown.

James Carpenter of Richmond Hill is spending a vacation of two weeks with his wife and four children at their camp in the Ridge road sector. Mr. Carpenter, who saw much active service in the World War, is connected with the investments department of a Fifth avenue bank.

The daily showers on Tuesday and Wednesday were regular sod-soakers; the rain came down so heavily that clover and timothy grass stands were unable to "take it", with the result that there will be some mean hay jobs in flattened fields of grass. Haying is not generally under way here, the timothy being now in bloom and all grasses still growing steadily. Oats, too, which were seeded later than usual, show up green and thrifty-looking as a result of the abundant precipitation during May and June.

Mr. and Mrs. William Kelly of New York are spending a week with Mrs. Kelly's mother, Mrs. D. T. Reardon.

Mrs. Earl Dean of Woodstock has been a guest for several days at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl C. Elmendorf. The Deanes formerly resided at Ashokan.

Louis Thiel, trustee of school district No. 4 has found The Freeman classified columns a satisfactory medium in disposing of his flock of 100 Brown Leghorn pullets. Mr. Thiel intends henceforth to go in more heavily for duck raising and will also devote more time to his honey business and flock of pedigreed goats.

Mrs. Mary Rogers and Miss Mildred Rogers are at their country home on Winchell Mountain.

July 4, 1874, the orators at a celebration held in the old village of Shokan were Col. Harrison White and Alfonso T. Clearwater. Prayers were made by the Rev. Mr. Van Tassell of the Baptist Church and the Rev. Mr. Fiero of the M. E. Church. Mr. Clearwater was a rising young lawyer with an office on John street, near Wall, in the village of Kingston. Colonel White was an army officer who had come to this section six years previously as manager of the tanning firm of Hoyt, Fairweather & Ladew. The colonel was in the habit of riding a white charger while a resident of Watson Hollow and Shokan.

F. J. Robeson, a New York city lawyer, spent the week-end with his grandchildren at the home of Mrs. Mabel Robeson of the Boiceville road.

Jerry Phillips, of the Touche neighborhood, has been cutting and storing hay on Otto Grossman's farm in the west end of the village.

Adam Kirk, Jr., of Newburgh, called on friends here Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Sarah Elmendorf, and granddaughter, Frances, have returned home after spending a week with relatives at Guilderland.

Arthur Johnson, whose funeral services were held Thursday afternoon in Kingston, was a former resident of the Boiceville sector of Olive. Mr. Johnson and his brother, Jacob, were brought upon the family place along the dugway road to Boiceville. The brothers as young men were interested in mechanics and they were among the first local youths to own and ride a bicycle.

Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Van Wagenen, and two children, removed Saturday from the W. Shultis cottage on the state road to Alex. Hamilton's house near Kenozia Lake. Mr. Van Wagenen a brother of the late Mrs. Hamilton, whose husband is now making his home with relatives in Phoenicia.

Mrs. Herbert K. Story, of Brooklyn, is staying at the family country place near Little Touche mountain.

James Rutherford with his $500 team of horses is cutting and hauling hay on the Winchell farm.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris Rose, newlyweds, have secured summer employment at the E. C. Burgher farm and boarding house on the west side of the reservoir. Mr. Rose until recently was a member of a government gypsy-moth scouting crew near Ellenville.

Herman Wendt, Jr., was a week-end visitor to the family's Shokan place. It is reported that Herman, who is employed in an airplane factory, will not spend the summer here as has been his custom for the past several years.

Mrs. J. G. Wilson, of Bronxville, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Homer Markle, Sr., at "Twin Trees." Mrs. Wilson's son, Allan, spent the week-end here.

Callers here Sunday included Mr. and Mrs. Walter Naughton, of Fleetwood. The couple, both of whom are summer visitors to Shokan, were married last Saturday in New York city. They planned to leave this week on a motor trip that will take them to Mexico and through the Southwest to Yellowstone Park, returning home and thence to Shokan some time in August.

Callers in the hub of the reservoir Sunday included Mrs. Harold Elliott and Irma and Donald Elliott of Route 28-A. The Elliott family formerly resided in the Secor house adjoining the Baptist Church grounds.

BABSON on BUSINESS

Best Farm Year Since 1929

Babson Park, Mass., July 2—Labor troubles and Congressional jockeying are providing spectacular newspaper headlines. More basic and more important news, however, is being made out in the farm country. There nobody is being shot; while the mails are being delivered as usual. But the cultivators and threshers are working over-time for this is the busiest year on the American farm in almost a decade.

City folks do not realize the powerful position the farmer holds in our economy. The 1934 and 1936 drouths unconsciously gave us the impression that crop failures build prosperity. A short crop this year combined with the cloud of pessimism hanging over the business world would have been a disaster of world-wide magnitude. There are no big carry-overs of grain and livestock from last season to make up for drouth losses either here or abroad. There can still be trouble, however. Black rust has ruined many a likely-looking crop. Reports of dust in the spring wheat belt are daily becoming more numerous. As usual, they are probably exaggerated.

Rare Combination

Bumper crops ordinarily mean a sharp break in prices. Some drop has already taken place at Chicago where wheat has fallen from $1.40 to $1.20 a bushel. Even with "dollar wheat," however, most of our farmers can pay up their old bills, "trade in" their tractors, take in the county fair, and have enough left over to do a good job on the mail-order catalogues. This season is going to be an extraordinary one. Not only should wheat continue to sell well above the "dollar" mark, but it looks like the best crop since 1931—big enough to allow us to ship wheat abroad for the first time since that year. This is a rare combination. Not since 1929 have we had both a good crop and a good price in the same season!

Maybe I am stressing wheat prospects too much for the income from this grain represents about 10 per cent of our total annual farm income. Its importance and popularity arise from the fact that wheat and cotton are the farmers' outstanding cash products. To the average city person, wheat is the symbol of "big" American farming. Actually, the more prosaic products, such as corn, milk, and vegetables each bring more money into the farmers' money bags. But wheat is the bellwether of the farm year. It is the season's "lead-off" crop. Usually, "as wheat goes, so goes the farmer." If we have a big winter wheat harvest, we can ordinarily expect good feed and forage crops and plenty of milk and eggs.

Other Crops in Good Shape

It is too early to make any definite statements about corn. Planting was unusually late, but good rains during the Winter and Spring have replenished much sub-soil moisture drained away in the last three years. July is the critical month for this vital feed crop. A lot can happen between now and August first. Cotton also has yet to pass through its test period. Most of the other leading crops are now in such good shape that only extremely poor weather in July can severely injure them. Pastures and ranges alone are below the average season. Truck gardens, fruit orchards, hay fields, and early potatoes are in good condition. Even egg and milk production are higher than usual at this season. This is a farm year!

Total income of American husbandmen in the low year of the depression reached only $5,400,000,000. Now, four short years later, average prices are 130 per cent higher than they were at the low in 1933. At wholesale, wheat is up 140 per cent, corn 380 per cent, hogs 270 per cent, eggs and poultry 120 per cent, and milk and butter 60 per cent. Housekeepers are well aware of this even though their weekly retail bill for foods has not advanced half as much as wholesale quotations. The big rise in prices, plus a good harvest, should boost farm income to around $9,000,000,000 this season—15 per cent above a year ago, and the highest total since 1929.

New Groups To Benefit

Higher prices for their short crops have pulled most farmers through the drouth years, but the "service" people have been hit hard. Commission houses, grain elevators, storage concerns, and the like are geared to handle mammoth harvests. They starve on crop failures. Grain traffic totals more than 30 per cent of some granger railroads' revenues. A short crop this year would have dealt these roads a death-blow! Then, too, good harvests everywhere at good prices mean everyone gets his share of the income. Some sections have not "had a crop" since 1931! This year, all farm areas with the exception of sections of eastern Montana, the western Dakotas, west-central Kansas and northwestern Oklahoma, should have good harvests.

A bright season for the farmer in 1937 is a particularly fortunate "break" for the factory-worker. In all my years of studying the business cycle and public sentiment, I have never seen confidence change so rapidly as it has this year. Mills are shutting down; forward-buying has stopped; investors are nervous. The temporary problems which are troubling the business world, however, will be settled eventually. Nevertheless, it will take some convincing announcement from Washington, some reassuring news from Europe, or some bullish report from the business front to yank confidence out of its slump. To supply that spark, I am pinning my hopes on crop reports and farm news.

Good Retail Outlook

There are 32,000,000 people in the United States whose livelihood directly depends upon farms. There are 24,000,000 others who live in rural communities. Canada has an additional 5,500,000 non-urban population. For years these groups have just been scraping by. This season they will have good crops, good prices, and a good income. Thus, after a decade of relative depression, nearly half our population will enjoy their first year of real prosperity. At the same time 12,000,000 who work in factories will earn around $50,000,000 more per week than they did a year ago, while investors' dividend checks will be at least $10,000,000 greater. These facts add up to only one conclusion: GOOD RETAIL TRADE THIS AUTUMN!

Man About Manhattan

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—The glamorous figures who move in the smart, sophisticated world of the theater—the really famous ones whose names conjure romantic legends and spell starry success in the spotlight and in the headlines—haven't always been the singled-out darlings of a fairy godmother. Most of them are able to trace their rise from obscure beginnings.

Frank Morgan, for instance, used to ride the range on a ranch in Nevada.... It was only a few years ago that Ethel Merman, trudging reluctantly to her office each day, was an unhappy stenographer.... Warner Baxter used to work for the Ohio Bell Telephone Company.

HOWARD DIETZ edited a magazine for the navy before he became the author of "Merry-Go-Round" and other Broadway musical shows.... Miriam Hopkins, a green blonde kid from the rose gardens of Atlanta, was ready to embark on a dancing career, but a broken ankle eliminated her from a troupe that was bound for South America, and she became an actress.

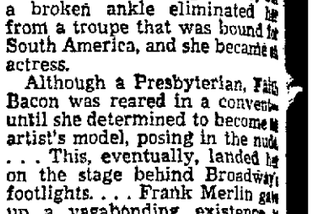
Although a Presbyterian, Fifi Bacon was reared in a convent until she determined to become an artist's model, posing in the nude.... This, eventually, landed her on the stage behind Broadway's footlights.... Frank Merlin gave up a vagabonding existence to become an author, and Edward Foran decided that authority books was a saner pastime than going through life as a circus roustabout.

Dr. Nathaniel Lief, whose practice is largely composed of literary, theatrical, and musical stars, really thought his future lay in constructing engineering projects in the jungles of Paraguay, but he flipped a coin and became a fashionable dentist instead.... His brother, Max, was drama critic for the N.Y. News until he went to Hollywood and became a successful scenarist.... A third brother (they run to boys, those Lief families), Alfred, writes studious books on the judiciary.

• • •

THEN, there is Alfred Lunt, who used to clerk in a department store.... Leslie Howard and Ronald Colman were employes in London banking houses until sheer boredom drove them into the theater.... Katharine Cornell almost gave in to her inclination to become the priotess of a kindergarten, in Buffalo.... Charlie MacArthur and Ben Hecht are products of Chicago newspaper offices.

Garbo herself once toiled in a corset fitter's shop, and Norma Shearer was a penniless office girl.... Billy Rose might still have been a song plugger if Barnum-like ideas hadn't persuaded him to become a purveyor of bizarre entertainments.



An Evening Meal

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

THE silent one was none other than a moose. Willy Nilly kept very still and watched.

The moose walked through the forest in spite of his big antlers with scarcely a sound, and now he had waded into the lake until the water was up to his shoulders.

Then he dipped his head down into the water to have some water weeds for his supper, and when he did this there was no moose to be seen at all.

To think of what a noise they had made as they had come through the woods and here this huge animal, much larger than a horse, had come so silently!

The moose had lifted his head above the water now and was looking about him. It was then that he noticed Willy Nilly, who had been sitting there, quite still and silent.

"You're not afraid of me, are you?" asked the little man.

"Somehow I'm not," answered the moose in his trumpeting voice, "although I am shy by nature."

"How can you get through the woods so quietly with those huge antlers of yours?"

"I suppose it's a moose secret I would tell it to you if I could, but I do not know it actually—I just somehow feel how it is to move quietly in spite of dense forests."

The moose was a strange looking creature. His legs were so long for his body, his head so big, his antlers so enormous and yet there was something beautiful about him as he stood in the water as though he belonged and had always belonged to the great, untouched forests.

"I admire you," said Willy Nilly, and the moose waved his great head as he disappeared again—silently into the forest.

Went, Misses Dorothy Went, Elizabeth and Jessie Marks, Florence Goetchius, Florence Rowley, Mildred Voorhees, Rosamond VandeWater, Mildred Lauretsen, of Poughkeepsie, and Mrs. Fred Lewis Vail. The party had a buffet supper following a walk in the mountain.

The Friday bridge club met last week with Mrs. John G. Lucas.

Playing bridge Monday afternoon with Mrs. Fred Lewis Vail were Mrs. Charles Farnham, Mrs. Mabel Hasbrouck, Mrs. D. H. Starr, Mrs. Rose Seaman, Mrs. Dora Wilklow, Mrs. Martha Schantz, Misses Bertha Wisemiller and Eliza Raymond.

Edward Griffin returned to his home, Stonycroft, on Friday following an operation at Vassar Hospital, Poughkeepsie.

Dr. and Mrs. Julius W. Blakely returned Tuesday from attending the sessions of the state health doctors held at Saratoga. On Friday they drove to Syracuse, where they remained over night with a sister of Dr. Blakely and then drove to Homer where they helped celebrate the birthday of their son, John Blakely, and from there went to Oneonta where they visited relatives.

On Friday Misses Dorothy Haight and Ruth Forshery in company with Misses Astrid Olson of Gary, Indiana, and Viola Petersen of Dumont, N. J., sail on the Gripsholf for Sweden. While abroad they will visit Denmark, Finland and Norway.

Duties of British Ruler

The duties of the British ruler are largely ceremonial, the actual ruler being the Prime Minister supported by Parliament. He makes numerous public addresses, presides at receptions, inspects troops, visits various exhibitions, etc. He opens Parliament with a speech prepared for him by his ministers. As Whitaker's Almanac says: "The King has a right to veto bills passed by both Houses of Parliament, but in practice his veto is almost obsolete." His refusal to sign a bill passed by Parliament would lead to a constitutional crisis.

Ship Medical Officer Busy

Aboard ship the medical officer and his corps are a regular board of health, says a writer in Hygeia, the Health Magazine. They inspect fresh food as it comes aboard; assure the sanitary preservation and preparation of food; check the weekly menus of the crew; verify the heating, ventilation and lighting of living compartments; take necessary precautions against parasitic skin disease, and direct the campaign against flies, bedbugs and cock roaches.

FLASHES OF LIFE SKETCHED IN BRIEF

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tasty Highway

Richmond, Va.—Virginia's experiment with salt roads was very successful, said highway department officials, except for the sheep.

A flock found a section of road on which salt was being tried as a binder, and licked big holes in the surface before they could be driven away.

Too Efficient

Shelby, N. C.—Local firemen had to pour hot water on their fountain to get iced water.

The laddies, tired of tepid water, rigged up refrigerating apparatus from several coils of pipe, an old drink stand, and other accessories.

The gadget worked too well, and the boys had to thaw out an eight-inch layer of ice on the pipes before the water would flow.

Nice Kitty!

Tulsa, Okla.—"No," said Patrolman Ike Fisher, "you're sergeant, and I'm just a private. I'll go for help."

"No," said Sergeant Lloyd Miller, "I'll go—oh, here comes the man now."

The man was Frank Vandewall, animal trainer, whose escaped cougars had just chased the two officers over a fence. He prodded the three beasts into a cage. Then he put his hand into their mouths.

"They're really quite tame," he said.

Affair of Honor

Indio, Calif.—F. A. Purcell accused E. J. Grace of welshing a bit. Grace challenged him to a duel. Their seconds chose overripe tomatoes as the weapons.

Garbed in white, the men are to stand in 10-foot circles 30 feet apart and let fly for three minutes. The splotches will tell who won.

A Dog's Devotion

Tokyo—Every morning at 4 o'clock, a drum is beaten at the village shrine of Sango. A three-year-old dog kept by the village head, Kakutaro Yauchi, runs to the shrine and bows before it.

Yauchi is a devout person and the dog is believed to have acquired the habit from his master.

KRIPPLEBUSH

Kripplebush, July 2—There will be a musicale given in the Junior O. U. A. M. Hall, Tuesday evening, July 6, at 8 o'clock by Tim Conway and the Clinton Singers, of Kingston, the Atwood quartet and other novelties. A nominal admission will be charged. Ice cream and cake will be on sale. Proceeds will benefit the M. E. Church.

Miss Mamie Shea spent Tuesday evening with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Shea.

Mrs. T. Eckert, of Olive Bridge, spent Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. L. M. Davis and daughters.

Triumph of City Culture Told to KiwanisbyHaynes

The Triumph of Industrial ulture," the ever continuing in- strial revolution, a warning at it contains perils for the ture and a suggestion toward oidance of the same, constitut- the substance of remarks of e Rev. Devello S. Haynes, of e Highland Presbyterian urch to members of the Ki- anis Club at the Governor Clin- Hotel Thursday noon.

The minister was introduced Dr Julius Gifford as "a boy- od friend and classmate, who s climbed far up the intellectual ountain."

The speaker announced at the tset of his address that to com- etely cover the ground of his eech it would be necessary to go ck far into history, "possibly 00 years," but because of lim- d time he began his survey in Civil War period and contin- d his discussion to the present y.

The pastor explpained that or to the time of the Civil War s nation lived under a rural ture with "the farmer the head a small but self contained com- nity." The farmer was "lord the manor," and evidenced an ense interest in his hired help, h of whom "was in reality a mber of the farm family." This dition existed nearly all over e country, but more exception- s in the southern states, where rge plantations were the best mple."

One of the causes of the Civil ar, believed the Rev. Mr. ynes, was the difference be- een this rural culture and thod of living, and the begin- g of the industrial culture ing its appearance in the rthern states. Expansion of the ntry brought to a head these o methods of culture and they re one of the real reasons for war, he declared.

"City culture won the war, and won ever since," he contin- d, and with its successes have e many problems. People ved to the city, took apart- nts where they did not know ir neighbors, family ties wid- d and in many cases were com- tely broken, employer-employe ationships of the previous farm disappeared, and the "spirit unity was broken."

This industrial culture began find its way to the farm itself, now "the farmer thinks like city man," emphasized the aker.

He noted two changes pro- ed:

"Emphasis is being placed on duction." He pointed out that fer the present mode of life ch man's business was made to into the economic structure, man was molded to the eme or he was liquidated." In case of ministers, he declared, e new pastor coming to town st make the gravel rattle as n as his feet hit the sidewalk, or he is warned that both church and himself will suffer." He contrasted this with a few years ago where the minister had a part in each family's life and plenty of time for meditation to develop the spiritual side of his calling.

"Emphasis on material things." Here the speaker called attention to the change in attitude of the citizenry, from the independent courage, bravery and sacrifice of the fathers of the country to the present day. He wondered what Washington would think of the demand of the people for government relief and aid, and their attitude of "Let George do it."

In closing he offered two suggestions that might bring a solution to the problems of today:

"Nothing should be done in arrogance." He illustrated his point in the case of labor, which has yearly been growing stronger until today it has become a power, and warned that "the attitude of the bully is dangerous." In every case of dispute, he said, "there is a great need for mutual respect."

"Reverance for each other." Need for a better understanding between men, was the point he brought out, and an understanding attitude of individual thoughts.

GONE WITH HIS HORSES.

Louisiana Sergeant Suicide After Animals' Destruction

New Orleans, July 2 (AP).—The 21 artillery horses First Sergt. Henry Brunig loved were led out and shot this week, condemned as too old for service

Sergeant Brunig was found dead last night, a bullet wound in his head, his revolver by his side

"The only explanation I can think of," said his uncle, H E Brunig, "is that Henry was grieving over the horses." Dr C Grenes Cole, coroner, said the death was a suicide

Henry Brunig had been a member of the Louisiana National Guard 21 years. He was wounded in France.

The horses were sorted out as old or unfit and executed after the motorization of Brunig's unit, the 141st Field Artillery, had been ordered by the war department.

Potted Plants for Porch or Terrace

Potted plants on the porch or terrace, hung in decorative wall brackets, or arranged in pleasing effects upon the balustrade or steps, are distinctly in fashion.

It is a fashion which is good for the porch, as it brings the fragrance of green plants, and the beauty of flowers and leaves, close to the occupants of the house It may be the closest approach to a garden many city homes can make

It is also good for the plants, since they are likely to have more light and fresher air than they would have indoors. Most house plants can be used on porches without injury, so long as they are protected from injury from wind, heavy rain and in the case of the foliage plants from too much sun.

A few hours' sunshine in the morning or afternoon will do no harm but in locations which are exposed to the midday sun as well, it is advisable to use the bedding plants of which florists have an abundant selection at this time of the year. Geraniums, petunias, nasturtiums, and all the window box plants may also be grown in pots.

Foliage plants which are useful in porches include the Boston fern, Norfolk Island pine, pandanus veitchii, asparagus fern, dracaena, sansevieria, aspidistra and rubber plant Trailing foliage plants for wall brackets are the English ivy, wandering Jew, and vincas.

Daily watering must be given potted plants which are set outdoors Evaporation will be greatly in excess of that experienced indoors, and the plants will suffer immediately from a lack of water. Frequent washing with a fine spray will also be appreciated.

ITALIAN GARLIC

If garlic of the Italian sort is wanted, it may easily be grown from sets and, thanks to its concentrated flavor, very little need be grown to supply an American family all winter. It may be recommended especially for flavoring French dressing for the winter salad course which nowadays usually consists of California head lettuce. One clove cut in two and rubbed on the dish in which the dressing is mixed will give the right flavor

HAVE A PRODUCTIVE VEGETABLE GARDEN

By The Master Gardener

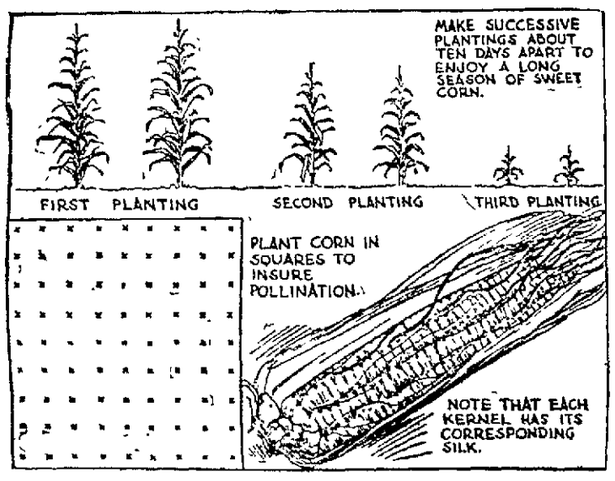
It is not necessary to have a large area devoted to vegetables A small space properly managed will prove very profitable. One of the means available of making each square foot of garden space produce a maximum yield is to make successive plantings of the quick growing vegetables. Another way is to plant the quick-growing vegetables between the rows of the slow growing kind By the time the slow growing vegetables are large enough to make use of the area recommended for their culture, the quick maturing ones will have been used.

In the vegetable garden, steady growth is important if the highest quality vegetables are to be grown To make your garden a success you must be sure that the plants are supplied with plenty of available plant food, to bring the plants to an early fruitful maturity Half starved plants require much more time to reach maturity, and when they do they are tough, pithy, and fibrous; the result of fighting for existence. The best way to assure fine succulent vegetables in abundance is to feed them with a complete, balanced plant food. Four pounds (2 quarts) per hundred square feet of garden area is the proper rate of application.

Those vegetables which require a long growing season and for that reason are started in the greenhouse or in a hotbed, are vigorous growers when set into warm, thoroughly prepared soil that has been well supplied with plant food. In transplanting vegetables, mix thoroughly one level tablespoonful of complete plant food with the soil in the bottom of the hole before setting out the plants. Then apply plant food over a radius two feet from the plant, at the rate of one rounded teaspoonful per square foot of ground. Four to six weeks later another application of a complete plant food should be made, applying a rounded teaspoonful per square foot. Apply over the entire soil with the exception of the area immediately adjacent to the plant, since the roots of the plant will have penetrated through most of the soil area by this time

Keep the spray handy and take a shot at all bugs that show themselves.

Plant Corn in Succession For Full Season's Supply



MAKE SUCCESSIVE PLANTINGS ABOUT TEN DAYS APART TO ENJOY A LONG SEASON OF SWEET CORN.
FIRST PLANTING
SECOND PLANTING
THIRD PLANTING
PLANT CORN IN SQUARES TO INSURE POLLINATION.
NOTE THAT EACH KERNEL HAS ITS CORRESPONDING SILK.

Some Facts About Planting Corn.

An ancient legend declares that th sweetest corn is that planted in June. Whether there is any truth in the legend or not, June planted corn makes the fastest growth and produces high quality crops. Unseasonable weather over vast stretches of the country has made corn planting late, both in farms and gardens, but there should be no delay in planting sweet corn. The second or third crop ought to be going in now under ordinary conditions Don't forget to plant in squares instead of long rows for better filled ears

American gardeners have been accustomed to plant things and let nature take its course, trusting to the natural fertility of the soil European gardeners use every wile and art to make the soil and the vegetable produce to its utmost Planting corn in squares so the pollen will get the freest possible distribution and produce the fullest ears with the most kernels on the cob is the best plan. Whichever way the wind blows pollen will be blown through the patch. Each silk must have its pollen to produce a kernel

Ground now is mellow and more easily worked than earlier in the spring. Give it good deep preparation and pulverize it fine for the corn patch. Spade in plenty of fertilizer. Corn is a high feeder and keeping it in speedy growth will bring the biggest and the earliest ears.

See that earlier planted corn is kept well hoed. It does not need a deep chopping hoeing That is likely to do more harm than good, but merely a soil stirring hoe to keep a mulch and prevent the start of weeds. It is always a good practice to hill up corn, although it is not necessary with the smaller growing types as it is with the larger forms

IT'S ODD
But It's Science

By HOWARD BLAKESLEE
AP Science Editor

New York (AP)—To measure the lower edge of infinity—that place or condition where heat ceases to exist, and which is called "absolute zero"—two English scientists J. F. Allen and E. S Shire of Cambridge, have found a new kind of thermometer

It is a very fine phosphor bronze wire. As temperature drops, the wire's resistance to electric current likewise goes down. The resistance drop is exactly in proportion to loss of heat, so that the wire measures the steps in the last degree.

It has accurately charted two hundredths of one degree above absolute zero, the scientists report in Nature. Whether it will remain accurate for the last two hundredths of a degree they do not know. But dropping through this last fraction of a degree would be all the way to infinity, and no scientist expects to attain that goal Infinity lies in the fact that no matter how close to absolute zero you get, there is always a smaller fraction you can think of, and that really exists.

War Doesn't Worry Stork.

Bilbao (AP)—The roar of guns in Spain's civil war didn't bother a stork in the small town of Ordun: It perched indifferently in its nest atop a church tower.

Let's Not Complain

We all want something we can't have, that's just the plan of life,
Why our desires prompt every scheme, activity and strife
A baby reaches up and cries for something it can't touch.
And, all through life, things out of reach are those we want so much.
Desires bring forth ambition and oftimes this means achievement.
Our hope, in any aim, gives us more pleasure than bereavement
So, though our hearts have guided us toward goals we did not gain—

Mr Pratt—I'm very much in love with Miss James Do you think she will accept me?

Miss Harris—Don't let that worry you. She always accepts

When a man comes a long distance to make a speech he generally makes the speech as long as the distance.

Foolish Neighbor — Do you think that baby of yours will ever make his mark?

Fond Father—Make his mark? You ought to see the walls of our home.

You can't blame the doctors if they do sometimes hurry our demise a little; about the only way you can collect a doctor's bill from some people is to collect it from their estate

Mother—Now Junior, you've made me lose my temper.

Junior—Shucks, mother, that ain't no loss.

Often the trouble with a beau is that he won't stay tied.

A rumor is about as hard to unspread as butter.

A wise wife keeps her temper and her looks.

Borrower—Will you lend me $20 for a week?

Lender (counting out the money)—Sure.

Lender (speaking again as they parted)—Remember, that's only for a week.

Borrower (turning livid red, and screaming)—You'll get your money. Stop hounding me!

Some of the men who shape public opinion are bum sculptors.

School Teacher—Your little girl is rather backward in her reading.

Father—Backward, eh? I suppose she takes that after her mother. She always reads the last chapter first.

Read it or not—William Tell is a myth.

Visitor—My name is Smith, and—

Native—You have my sympathy, of course. But, really, I don't see how you can blame me.

A friend of ours who teaches in a grade school in a city that shall be unnamed, told us that one of the parents of the neighborhood, probably one whose little Willie had finally been caught stealing examination questions, had been complaining that the teachers in that school were being paid too much. The complaint was overheard by the janitor of the school, one of those long-suffering, patient fellows to whom the teachers confide their woes. "Say," he sputtered, "It's worth all they get just to smell them kids, let alone learn 'em!"

Husband—I thought you said you bought low shoes the other day?

Wife—I did.

Husband — They've deceived you again, my dear. The bill came in today and they certainly were high ones.

Clipped: One thing you can always get plenty of free help to do is wasting time.

Mrs. Rives—I am much pleased with my new cook.

Mrs. Bridges—How long have you had her?

Mrs Rives—Her day will be up tonight.

If you think you're not a clock-watcher, remove the clock for a few days.

Ancient shoemakers kept talking crows in their shops as symbols of their trade.

Buses Turn Vegetarian.

Kunming, Yunnan Province, China (AP)—Peanuts, tea and seeds of poppies, cotton or cabbage furnish fuel for China's vegetable-oil buses and trucks.

Developed for economical reasons, since the high tariff on gasoline makes vegetable oil 36 per cent cheaper, the engines have proved their practicability on the recent Nanking-Kunming caravan trip, which was made to mark the inauguration of a new highway.

Pony express riders carried Lincoln's inaugural address from St Joseph, Mo., to San Francisco in 7 days and 17 hours—a record. The modern air line schedule is 12 hours.

SUNSHINE AND HONEYMOON

Here is an idyllic portrait study of the Duke and Duchess of Windsor, now on their Austrian honeymoon—climax to an immortal royal love story in the history of England. The Duchess was wearing a white wool suit and a polka dot blouse from her trousseau.

Count Plans Wedding

Havana, July 2 (AP)—The Count of Covadonga, former heir to the Spanish throne, plans to wed pretty Marta Focafort, Cuban commoner, Saturday night. President Laredo Bru, and Col. Fulgencio Batista, commander of the Cuban army, will be official witnesses of the ceremony uniting a son of former King Alfonso of Spain and the wealthy dentist's daughter. Covadonga renounced his title of Prince of the Asturias and his claim to the Spanish throne to marry another Cuban commoner, Edelmira Sampedro. They were divorced three months ago.

A recent survey estimated that 431,000 donors presented between $50,000,000 and $100,000,000 in outright gifts to higher education in 1936.

CCC Will Expand School for 300,000

Washington, July 2 (AP).—The Civilian Conservation Corps tackled today the problem of expanding its "school" for 300,000 boys, some of whom may not be enthusiastic about studying.

A wide range of subject is made possible through CCC legislation signed this week by President Roosevelt.

"It doesn't mean we're going to shorten the 40-hour work week in the camps," officials explained, "but the program formally approves of greater stress on learning 'how' to work."

The camps now have 25,000 education advisers. Academic training is under the war department, with the office of education acting as adviser.

Enrollees already may receive instruction in 300 different types of jobs.

Howard W. Oxley, national director of CCC camp education, has found that 89 per cent of the boys voluntarily buckle down to study.

He said more than 50,000 have been taught to read and write, more than 300,000 have received better grounding in grade school subjects, 200,000 have taken high school subjects, and 15,000 have pursued college courses.

There have been 1,700,000 young men in the camps since the beginning of education work late in 1934.

CORNERSTONE OF 140-FOOT TOWER LAID AT MENLO PARK

Menlo Park, N. J., July 2 (AP)—The cornerstone of a 140-foot tower today marked the site where Thomas A. Edison created the incandescent light and the phonograph.

Around the steel tower bearing a "perpetual light" in memory of the great inventor a mosaic concrete shaft will rise.

At the cornerstone laying exercises yesterday Charles Edison, son of the inventor and assistant secretary of the navy, recited into one of the earliest reproducing machines the words his father used in his experiments. Later, the lines which start: "Mary had a little lamb" were broadcast to the audience.

Present were several hundred gray-haired associates and employes of the late inventor.

CONSTIPATION IS A MISERABLE THING!

It takes the pep right out of you—makes you feel tired and irritable—ready to worry over the slightest thing.

Yet it can be corrected in most cases so easily. Common constipation is usually caused by lack of "bulk" in the foods you eat.

Millions of people have learned that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN ends constipation by putting "bulk" back in the diet. Within the body, ALL-BRAN absorbs twice its weight in water, forming a soft mass and gently sponging out the system.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN also furnishes vitamin B to tone the intestines and iron for the blood.

Two tablespoonfuls daily as a cereal with milk or cream, or in recipes, are sufficient. Three times daily in severe cases.

Sold at all grocers—and guaranteed by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

PRODS WORLD WITH NAZI PROPAGANDA

Powerful Radio Station Is Broadcasting Continually.

London.—From a little German village comes the loudest voice on earth.

It is the new German broadcasting station whose sole intent is to keep the world flooded with Nazi propaganda, day and night

A dozen short-wave transmitters pour out a never-ending stream of news, views and general programs —and Herr Hitler has still another ten transmitters up his sleeve.

His intention, it is said, is to safeguard Germany from a recurrence of the blunder she made during the last war, when the Kaiser did not deem propaganda necessary.

When his twelve transmitters are working, which is every day, fifty hours of Nazi propaganda is thrown through the air to many countries —just three times as much as that used by Daventry, Britain's biggest station.

Zeesen, tiny village nineteen miles from Berlin, is the nerve center of this tremendous force for Hitlerism. To guard it, a military airfield has been carved out of the woods nearby. This airdrome will be one of the most important in Germany.

Although there is no immediate threat of war, the broadcasting station itself is fenced in by barbed wire, and an armed guard patrols the ten-acre grounds

Few nations escape its propaganda net Dynamic Dr Paul Josef Goebbels, chief of all radio, has divided the world into zones: South Asia and Australasia, the Far East, South America, Central America, Africa, North America Cunningly, he sandwiches his Nazi messages between news, music, and birthday greetings to far-off listeners

Seven languages are used over the air. His announcers are Americans, English, Indians, South Americans, Chinese.

Cat Greatest Enemy of Small Game and Birds

Columbia, Mo.—Two University of Missouri zoologists, in a study published here, branded the cat as "the most numerous enemy of small game and song birds," and estimated that cats in the state, outside of those in cities and towns, kill not less than 12,000 birds per year

The estimate was contained in "A Survey of the Resident Game and Furbearers of Missouri," published by Dr. Rudolf Bennitt, associate professor of zoology, and Werner O Nagel, instructor in zoology

The survey estimated that there are 680,000 cats in rural Missouri, including 280,000 strays, and urged a halt to the practice of dumping unwanted cats in the country, disposal of surplus cats humanely, the killing of strays by hunters and game wardens, limits upon the number of cats to be kept by a family, licensing of cats, bounty on cats and legislation making it obligatory to keep cats restrained at night

"The great majority of sportsmen consider the cat as the most important quail predator," the report said, and pointing to cat predations upon other game, declared cats kill wild turkeys that are half grown or larger.

Rhino Horns

It is not generally known that the horn of the rhinoceros is composed of hair and can be bent in half without snapping In China and the Far East it is greatly valued as an aid to longevity and cannot be purchased for less than 25 pounds-sterling per cubic inch, says Tit Bits Magazine It is ground down to a fine powder and taken in the form of snuff. Most wealthy Chinese keep supplies of this fine gray dust in costly lacquered boxes made specially for the purpose and take the tiniest of pinches once a day. Centuries ago it was also used in Europe as a specific for fevers.

Tribe Permits Historic U. S. Flag to Be Flown

Muskegon Mich.—A feature of the Muskegon centennial and lumberjack carnival scheduled for July 17 to 31, inclusive, will be an American flag which has been hidden from the white man since 1828.

Indian chiefs, in whose custody the insignia was placed more than a century ago, say that no white man has seen the flag since its presentation It has been used only in tribal ceremonies, they emphasize Custodians will bring the flag to Grand Rapids, where they will be met by a police cordon and escorted to Muskegon Here it will wave over a 'mock' Indian village, constructed within the stockade where Michigan's entry into the Union will be celebrated.

There were advances in the bond and commodity markets, with July wheat up 8 cents at Chicago and 7 cents at Minneapolis.

In France there was the unprecedented situation of a devaluation unaccompanied by a devaluation boom.

The rise in wheat was due principally to continued reports of rust damage. It seems to be agreed that great damage has been done to the spring wheat crop in both this country and Canada and that further losses are certain.

American shares were firm in Amsterdam yesterday. The London market averaged higher.

American Federation of Labor officials are said to be considering a campaign for repeal of the Wagner Labor Relations Act. Officials are discouraged at inability to secure amendment to the law which would guarantee rights of craft minorities in bargaining. They feel that the National Labor Relations Board has demonstrated a "partisan and pro-CIO" attitude.

HIDEOUT!

By The AP Feature Service

WASHINGTON—Off dimly-lighted, empty corridors on the fifth floor of the old House Office building, a few New Deal congressmen have their hideouts. Here a man can peel off his coat, remove his shoes and get to work—or take a nap.

The hideouts are small, untidy offices with very little furniture—and no telephones. They open on a balcony. Many members of the house have applied for a hideout; only a few have been given one.

Representative Maury Maverick of Texas is one of the fortunates. "We use these offices," he explains, "to get off alone, now and then, for serious study and heavy thinking—and to get away from job-hunters as well."

These pictures show how he does it.

2. BY SECRET STAIRS he goes to his den.

3. IN COMFORT he dictates a speech.

Most Valuable Wood

Teak is the most valuable of all known timbers. For use in tropical countries it has no equal, and for certain purposes it is preferable to other wood in temperate climates, according to Tit-Bits Magazine. Teak has great strength, elasticity, and remarkable durability. It is not very hard, is easily worked, and takes a beautiful polish. The average weight of a perfectly-seasoned piece of teak wood is between 38 and 46 pounds per cubic foot. Once seasoned, it does not crack, shrink, split or alter its shape. Teak grows in India, Burma, Siam, the Philippine Islands, and the Malay archipelago. The trees are about 100 feet to 150 feet high, and 2 feet thick when full-grown. They often produce leaves 2 feet long by 1 foot wide, which the natives use for thatching and wrapping bundles. The leaves contain a red dye once used in treating silk and cotton.

States and Shore Line

The United States coast and geodetic survey lists only seacoast and not the coast of the Great Lakes. Florida has 399 miles of coastline on the Atlantic and 798 miles on the Gulf of Mexico, a total of 1,197 miles of seacoast. California is listed second with 913 miles of seacoast. In tidal shore line (including islands) Florida has 2,276 miles of shore. Though according to the methods of the coast and geodetic survey Maine has only 228 miles of coast line (without islands). If all the indentations are measured that state would have about 3,000 miles. Michigan has a total of 1,715 miles of coastline on the Great Lakes, including 905 miles in the Upper peninsula and 810 miles in the Lower peninsula.

Father of Experiment Stations

Norman Jay Colman (1827-1911) is sometimes called the father of the experiment stations because he was the author of the Hatch bill which authorized their creation in the states and territories. As commissioner of agriculture under President Cleveland he succeeded in raising the bureau of agriculture to an executive department represented in the cabinet. He was the first secretary of agriculture and was editor of Colman's Rural World, a Missouri farm paper.

INGLEWOOD SLAYINGS REMAIN UNSOLVED TODAY

Inglewood, Calif., July 2 (AP)—Baffled detectives started from scratch again today in their search for the strangler of three little girls.

With the exception of one person, scion of a wealthy New York and Los Angeles family, all suspects were eliminated as police took a new tack in their investigation—the belief the children were killed by someone with whom they were acquainted.

Even "Eddie the Sailor" for whom police have been seeking since the beaten and garroted bodies of the girls were found in a Baldwin Hills ravine Monday, was freed from suspicion.

For he, too, was a comparative stranger to Madeline Everett, 7, her sister, Melba, 9, and 8-year-old Jeanette Stephens.

The only holdover of the first phase of the roundup, the wealthy, 33-year-old man, was removed last night from an Inglewood Hospital to the city hall, then sent back again to the hospital when authorities judged him still too intoxicated to submit to questioning.

Officials want him to explain his whereabouts over the week-end. They refused to disclose his name.

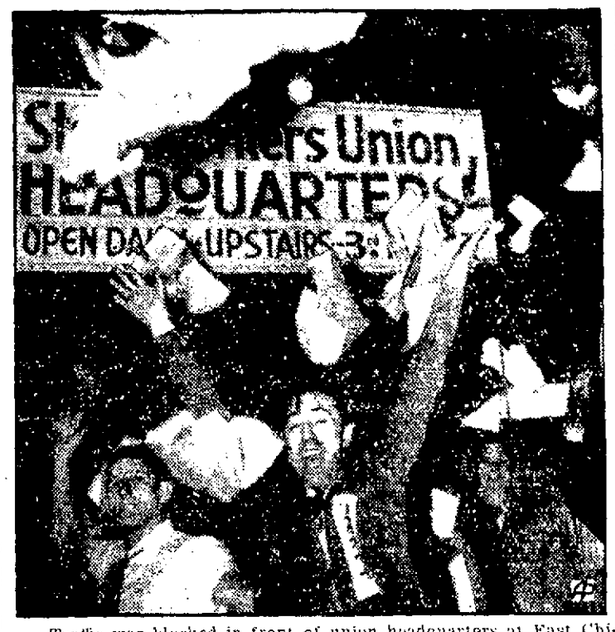
CROWD MILLS OUTSIDE JAIL AS SUSPECTS QUIZZED

Avidly awaiting news of the official investigation of the triple killing of Inglewood, Calif., girls this pressing crowd outside the city jail sought news of the latest developments. Investigators were quizzing suspects inside. Public feeling ran high over the crime.

SUSPECT

Luther Dow, 33-year-old transient, is shown after his arrest at Los Angeles where he was held as a suspect in the brutal slaying of three little Inglewood, Calif., girls.

STRIKE'S END. BACK TO WORK



Traffic was blocked in front of union headquarters at East Chicago, Ind., after Governor Townsend announced agreements with C.I.O. and Inland Steel would return 12,500 men to work without interference. Showers of paper rained on celebrants, eager to return to work after a month's strike-enforced idleness.

move, the home of a non-striking employe was dynamited at nearby Canton. The blast ripped the rear porch off the home of Matt Pericsh, but injured no one.

Ignores Threat

Today, Republic ignored a CIO picket captain's brittling defi:

"If they try to open this plant, they are in for a damned bloody fight."

Five hundred troops moved in to forestall the eventuality. They came from the Youngstown area where plants were reopened last week under similar circumstances without disorder.

Back-to-work was the music tramping feet were drumming all along the five-weeks-old strike front—from Johnstown, Pa., with its recent history of martial law and dynamitings and aroused citizenry, through the Ohio mill cities of the Mahoning Valley, and up to the western terminus of the Indiana-Illinois Calumet area.

But the strike, with its record of 13 dead, 250 injured and $30,000,000 cost, was still on.

Leo W. Cox, picket captain at Republic's Central Steel division here, left no doubt about that last night when, protesting against the use of troops for the plant's reopening today, he said:

"If they try to open this plant, they are in for a damned bloody fight. We have more than enough men here to whip this army, and the scabs, too."

Republic's Central Steel division normally employs 3,700 men.

Want Troops Restrained

The picket captain's protest against use of troops was echoed in Federal Court at Columbus where C. I. O. is seeking to enjoin the employment of militia in the strike sectors. Judge Meil G. Underwood has set next Tuesday as the date for hearing the union's appeal for a temporary restraining order against the troops.

The report of President Roosevelt's strike mediation board, made public at Washington by Secretary of Labor Perkins, put the blame for that board's failure to effect a settlement on the steel companies.

Secretary Perkins defended the leadership of C. I. O., headed by John L. Lewis, and said she thought it was a responsible union. In this she disagrees with Tom Girdler, the outspoken chairman of Republic Steel, who calls C. I. O. "utterly irresponsible."

The secretary said she thought the opposing groups would meet "sometime," and that "when they do, they will solve the problem."

Another cabinet member, Postmaster-General Farley, had some hard words to say about Republic Steel, informing the Federal District Court at Washington in a brief that the steel corporation is trying to stir up "civil disorder and strife." Farley asked the court to deny Republic's petition for an order to compel the post-office department to deliver mail to non-strikers within Republic's plants.

Republic claims the postoffice department refused to deliver mail containing food to the self-interned workers.

Codfish Balls

- 1 cup diced raw potatoes
- 2 cups water
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ½ cup shredded salt codfish
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 1 egg
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- 4 tablespoons flour
- Deep fat for frying

Mix potatoes, water and codfish. Add salt. Cover and cook 15 minutes or until the potatoes are very tender when tested with a fork. Drain thoroughly and place over the fire for a second to allow ingredients to dry thoroughly. Add butter, egg and pepper. Beat until fluffy. Shape into two-inch balls and roll in flour. Fry until brown in deep hot fat. (This will require about 3 minutes.) Drain and serve immediately.

Butterscotch Pudding

- ½ cup dark brown sugar
- 1 tablespoon granulated sugar
- 2 tablespoons flour
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 1 egg or 2 yolks
- 1 cup milk
- ¼ teaspoon vanilla

Mix sugars with flour, salt and butter. Add egg and milk. Cook in double boiler until pudding becomes thick and creamy, stirring frequently. (It will require about 10 minutes for the pudding to thicken.) Add vanilla and pour into glass cups. Cool. Chill and serve plain or with cream. A third of a cup of broken pecans may be added to the pudding after it is cooked. Whipped cream, too, will lend a festive touch.

The Shetland Islands

The Shetland islands, home of the little shaggy ponies, lie about 110 miles north of Scotland and less than twice that distance from the coast of Norway, to which country they belonged after Harold I conquered the Picts, early inhabitants of the islands, in the middle part of the Ninth century. They became Scotch—and later English property—during the reign of James II of Scotland, who loaned Christian I of Norway and Sweden a large sum of money, accepting the Shetland islands as security. Christian did not meet his note when it became due, and consequently lost the islands to Scotland. They number more than a hundred, large and small, but only about a third of them are inhabited.

O'Grady Hearing Put Over to July 9

Nicholas O'Grady, of Athens, who was arrested several days ago by Sergeant James Cunningham and Trooper Walter Keefe on a petit larceny charge, growing out of alleged check transactions, was arraigned today before Justice Webber of the town of Ulster and the petit larceny charge dismissed and a warrant was sworn out for the arrest of O'Grady on a charge of forgery, second degree. The arrest on the forgery charge was made after investigation by Sergeant Cunningham, Trooper Keefe and Troopers Metzger and Mahoney of the B. C. I.

It is alleged that O'Grady cashed a check and secured merchandise in the sum of $65 from the complainant, Roosa, of the Saugerties road.

Arraigned before Justice of the Peace Webber of Lake Katrine this morning O'Grady asked for a hearing and the matter was adjourned until July 9. He was remanded to jail pending the hearing.

Traver Praises June Term Jurors; Court Adjourns

Jurors who have been in attendance at the June term of county court were excused this morning by County Judge Frederick G. Traver and the court adjourned to chambers. In excusing the jurors Judge Traver thanked the men for their services at this season of the year and told them that their presence in court had been instrumental in disposing of a number of criminal matters which otherwise would not have been disposed of if the jurors had not been present and ready to hear evidence in the cases.

No 48, a negligence action brought by Myrtle Hasbrouck, an infant, etc., against James Ciro Sinagra, was settled Thursday. Peter H. Harp for plaintiff and A. J. Cook for defendant.

This morning No. 41, Daniel Webster Wynkoop against Elmer Schweinfest, an action for conversion, to recover money damages, was put over the term. Charles F. Kaiser, Jr., appeared for plaintiff and Philip Slutsky for the defendant. Mr. Kaiser announced he was ready to go to trial in the matter, which is an appeal from justice's court. Mr. Slutsky asked that the case go over the term in order that he might have an opportunity to appeal to the appellate division from an order of county court which denied his motion to dismiss the appeal.

Judge Traver said he would put the case over on payment of term fees, costs and disbursements. Mr. Slutsky asked that the case go over on his application without costs and term fees being paid, provided he took an appeal.

Denies Application.

Judge Traver denied the application and said he would put the case over on condition the costs be paid within 10 days. The court stated that the defendant did not say he would appeal, but that he would appeal provided the cost was not excessive. Under the circumstances he said he would hold to his decision and put the case over on condition the costs and term fees were paid in ten days.

Mr. Slutsky held that the plaintiff had no grounds for an appeal to county court, once having consented to judgment in justice's court. He said he would like to take this matter to the appellate division for a determination.

No. 38, Morris Miller against William Jacobellis and Chester Winne, a negligence case; an appeal from city court, went over the term. Elmer H. Nathan appears for plaintiff and Francis T. Murray for the defendants. Mr. Murray said the defendant had been unable to locate the driver of the defendant's car and for that reason he asked the case go over to give an opportunity to locate the driver of the car involved.

HELD ON CHARGES OF BURGLARY AND FORGERY

Louis Harris, 56, of Malden, who was arrested Wednesday by Sergeant Cunningham and Trooper Keefe, following investigation by B. C. I. investigators Metzger and Mahoney of a burglary at the home of Thomas Ottey, Staples brickyard, was arraigned Thursday before Justice Charles H. Bennett at Saugerties. The Justice held him for appearance before the grand jury on charges of burglary in the third degree and forgery in the second. He was remanded to the Ulster county jail.

It is charged that Harris entered the home of Ottey during his absence and among other things took a check for $32.17 from a trunk and cashed it at the Saugerties bank, claiming that he was the man whose name appeared on the check.

Broadway: "Make Way for Tomorrow." One of the best selling novels of the last few years becomes this season's cinema masterpiece at the Broadway in a real and poignant story that reaches the heart of almost every American family. The question of the aging parents, what the children are to do in the matter of supporting them in the sunset of their lives, these matters of such concern are handled with a warm and delicate touch in "Make Way for Tomorrow." For the play tells of two old folks who are forced to be separated after living together for 50 years. One goes to the family of a daughter, the other to the family of a son. The separation, the loss of their home, the realization that they are burdens upon their unwanting children, all work toward the play's eventual solution to the problem. Victor Moore is brilliant in his first serious screen role and Beulan Bondi lends excellent support along with Fay Bainter and Barbara Reed. A Paramount picture.

Kingston: "The Case of the Stuttering Bishop" and "As Good as Married." Double features continue at the Kingston, the first a murder mystery with an unusual plot, the second a romantic comedy of average entertainment value. Donald Woods and Ann Dvorak are featured in the mystery melodrama while John Boles and Doris Nolan are the stars of the other attraction.

Orpheum: "Woman of Glamour" and "Sing, Cowboy, Sing." One sophisticated picture and one rough and ready play constitute the double feature bill at the Orpheum, the first an insight into the way the glamour girls make a living being beautiful, the second a cowboy drama with Tex Ritter singing his way through love and danger. Virginia Bruce and Melvyn Douglas are featured in the first attraction.

Tomorrow

Broadway: "I Met Him In Paris". One of the outstanding comedies of the summer season invades the Broadway Theatre with a star studded cast headed by Claudette Colbert, Melvyn Douglas and Robert Young. The story concerns a modern young lady who goes on a romantic rampage that takes her to some of the swank places on the continent. She is followed by two men who seek her hand and the situations that arise are comical and entertaining. The winter sports scenes are especially noteworthy because of their beauty. Miss Colbert gives another grand performance as the carefree young woman looking for fun and her supporting cast is also above average.

Kingston: "Charlie Chan at the Olympics". Just when it seemed that Detective Chan had become inactive in his sleuthing endeavors along comes this brisk and exciting mystery story that centers around the last Olympics. It follows the usual Chan formula and with everyone nicely baffled by mysterious happenings, it is the one and only Chan who gathers together the unsatisfactory evidence and pieces it together into an understandable whole. This show is good warm weather entertainment and Warner Oland is excellent in the starring role.

Orpheum: Same.

Hollywood
Sights And Sounds

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD — Even after years in Hollywood, it's startling to walk on a set and see a movie orchid ironing a blue work shirt. Or ironing anything. It's like catching your laundress strumming your harp, if you have a harp.

Movie stars don't do their own ironing, except in pictures. When I walked on the "Dead End" set and saw Sylvia Sidney ironing away, it was surprising. She looked as if she knew how to iron. Her stance was correct. Her approach was almost professional. She said that was no wonder, because in pre-movie days she'd done her share of ironing.

That made it funnier when Director William Wyler, who claims to be a smoothie when it comes to ironing, tried to iron out her technique. He interfered when first she took the hot flat-iron off the cookstove. Wanted her to wait until she reached the ironing board before she tested the iron with wet finger.

"You always test the iron at the stove, not at the board," Sylvia said, not without smugness. "Suppose the iron wasn't hot enough? Then you'd have to walk back to the stove."

"Looks better my way," he said. "Don't care how your way looks," said Sylvia. "Do you want to have every woman in the country writing letters telling me I don't know how to iron?"

That settled it. Sylvia won, too, on the way an ironer sprinkled a shirt. Wyler, who'd seen a number of Chinese laundrymen at work, wanted her to fill her mouth with water and blow on the shirt.

It's little things like this that can show up a director.

* * *

Smack-on-the-nose pen portrait of Jimmy Durante is this.

"Off the screen, Durante talks and acts as he does in his pictures. He talks equally fast from either side of his nose, speaking in short, jerky sentences, hurling his words at his listener with his whole body.

"In a conversation, Durante retreats behind his nose and lies in wait for the question. It comes. He darts out, pounces upon it, wrestles with it, tears at it, and spits it back out of the corner of his mouth, a mangled and beaten thing . . . The listener forgets that he is being talked to and thinks he is watching some extraordinary performance from a seat a little too close."

Wish I'd done it. Morley Warren, Albuquerque Tribune reporter, did.

A brilliantly dialogued satire marks Robert Elwyn's second seasonal effort at the Woodstock Maverick Theatre and last evening's opening played before an appreciative audience which thoroughly enjoyed all the subtleties and ramifications of a plot both timely and farcical. Polished and smooth throughout and staged with a professional skill unusual to summer theatres, "First Lady" is a tribute to the industry and ability of Robert Elwyn and his talented group of players. This community is fortunate to have a summer playhouse of such high calibre and the Maverick management is to be congratulated on the increasing excellence of its productions.

"First Lady" starts slowly and gains momentum as it progresses. It throws barbs of jest at official Washington with a cantankerous enjoyment and it proves quite conclusively how presidential timber is milled in the gossipy circle behind the scenes in the capitol city. The play is seen from a women's viewpoint and the men in the cast are merely pawns in the drama's action.

Lucy Chase Wayne, played by Velma Royton, is the hub around which the whole play circles. Anxious to have her husband the present secretary of state, become the party's next presidential candidate, she uses every possible scheme to insure his success in that regard. Playing parlor politics is a game with Mrs. Wayne and she almost plays herself into disaster. Her mistake in trying to ridicule her social enemy, Irene Hibbard, costs her some anxious and trying moments. As a joke, she starts the ball rolling to have Mrs. Hibbard's husband become the party's choice but her joke becomes a serious problem when the newspapers and the bar association get on the bandwagon for a Hibbard-for-president boom.

Outstanding in last night's presentation was Velma Royton in the starring role and the work of Frances Bavier, Don McHenry, Helen Waren and Frank Rothe was also exceptional. These five players kept the action moving with a well paced tempo and Mr. McHenry's characterization of a dyspeptic supreme court justice was unusually gifted in its scope and restraint.

New faces in the Maverick cast included Robert Smith, Polly Klock and Jerry Holman. All three contributed to the play's enjoyment with well rounded characterizations.

"First Lady" will play tonight, Saturday, Sunday and Monday, with a curtain at 8:45.

No mention of tea is found in the Bible or the works of Shakespeare.

Woodstock Enjoys 3-Day Carnival at Country Club Site

Woodstock's mid-summer carnival, sponsored by the Woodstock Country Club, got off to an hilarious and auspicious start this morning on the club grounds along the Sawkill, with all townsfolk and vacationists turning out to spend the day and enjoy the fun.

A feature of the carnival, which will continue today, Saturday and Sunday, will be the appearance of revelers in their sesquicentennial costumes, and for this part of the program some will receive prizes. Allen Watercus, club president, is stalking the grounds in his Indian chief costume.

The committee in charge has set up open fireplaces so that those who desire may bring their own food and cook it on the spot. Thus, they'll miss none of the turtle races, or the golf, swimming and tennis contests. Neither will they be absent when each evening two orchestras, Sickles Entertainers and Montana's, ripple forth at 7 o'clock for continuous dancing.

The carnival will end Sunday evening with a burst of fireworks on the club grounds.

Monday the town picnic under the auspices of the P.-T. A., will be held at the athletic field, Rock City road, Woodstock.

Claims Record.

To follow the news, to have your say in conversation, you must be acquainted with Washington, London, Paris—where news pops continuously. And who knows when the spotlight will fall on some out-of-the-way section of the globe!

When King Zog of Albania hits the papers, it's fun to know that, in the North of his queer little country, communications are still by pack train, yet the principal cities are connected by a regular air transport system.

This year, when England stole the front page news, didn't it help your sense of values to know England's one-third the size of Texas? Talking of size, have you heard of Tannu-Tuwa? It's an independent country big enough to sink all of England in, sandwiched between Russia and Mongolia. The people, Tuvinians, mine gold and ashes tos, raise flocks.

Conferences, treaties, even wars, hinge on world trade. Do you know your country's part in this continuous struggle? United States raises almost half the world's corn, almost two-fifths of the world's cotton. Coal, iron and oil are our chief sources of mineral wealth.

Our up-to-date 40-page WORLD ATLAS AND INTERNATIONAL GAZETTEER with maps printed in full color gives you a mental picture of sizes and locations of all countries. Fascinating facts on every nation from the smallest — Vatican City with its 109 acres —to the far-flung British Empire covering 13,172,060 square miles. Understand world events, talk intelligently with this valuable guide.

Tomato, or "Love Apple," Also "Apple of Morocco"

When the Spaniards invaded Peru they found the natives eating a small pear-shaped fruit growing on plants as tall as dwarf trees. When later they saw plants in Mexico bearing the same fruit, they did not connect the Peruvian discovery with the fruits which the Aztecs of Mexico called "Tomatl."

In process of time seeds of this "tomatl" grown in Spain found their way to Morocco, where they first became known as the "apple of Morocco." There the Italians found it and translated this term into "Pomo dei Mori." When it finally reached France it became Pomme d'Amour. Thus did our English cousins arrive at the term "love apple" now used for the tomato in various languages.

The earliest colonists to reach this continent brought seeds with them, among them those of love apples, which in those days were cherished more for the beauty of their fruit than their service as a food. Not until the beginning of the Nineteenth century did the tomato descend from its ornamental position among the posies to its lowly place in the vegetable garden.

The real history of the tomato as an economic factor starts around 1847, states a writer in the New York World-Telegram. It was then that the pioneer tomato grower of this country, A. W. Livingston, of Ohio, started to take the tomato seriously. What he found was a pin cushion shaped fruit, more or less hollow, tough and full of acid juice. The evolution of the tomato forms a fascinating chapter in the history of American vegetables.

Song of the Angle Worm Welcome Sound to Robin

To most people the angle worm suggests hooks, lines, sinkers and a certain number of deluded fish which have tried in vain to escape from their folly and particularly a few big ones which did escape. But to the forester, angle worms may suggest hardwood forests, according to forestry experts.

Angle worms also have been otherwise distinguished. It has been said that angle worms sing; that is how robins hear them or find out where they are, and the claim that these curious invertebrates are silviculturists and have something to do with the growing of trees is also a novel idea, at least to the layman.

This lowly denizen of the earth, notwithstanding all the skepticism about the claims of his versatility, is probably the most important individual of the many soil animals which exercise influence upon forest soils, especially soils in which hardwoods grow.

The most important of the earthworms from the forester's viewpoint are the big ones; scientists have named them Lumbricus terrestris. They are the kind that are lured from their burrows by rain or the shades of night, the piece de resistance of the robin. According to scientists these earthworms help to fertilize the soil.

Bad Weather Holds Glider Pilots

Elmira, N. Y., July 2 (AP)—The nation's glider pilots who want to compete in the national soaring contests here next year will have to qualify in district eliminations first.

Pilots awaiting favorable soaring conditions heard an announcement by William Enyart, contest chairman for the American Aeronatics Association, that such meets are being planned for the Pacific Coast, Midwest, Central and Southern sections.

The eastern elimination meet will be held at Elmira, Enyart said.

Meanwhile, spectators at Harris Hill, meet headquarters, were treated to an exhibition of nerve and skill by Jonas Pyragius, Lithuanian pilot who was one of the few to soar in practice flights yesterday.

While flying upside down at 1,500 feet, the hood over the cockpit of his sail plane came loose. Pyragius grasped it with one hand and handled the controls with the other until he righted the plane. Then he threw the hood away and landed.
